INSTRUCTIONS: The following case study contains information for a business plan. Read the case and answer the questions that follow each section.

CASE STUDY

Boka Discount Store

SECTION A

Boka is a small community discount store owned by two business partners and college friends, Rory Banks and Denny Skills. They are both trained in all aspects of business but Denny excels in marketing and Rory in finance. The store provides a variety of merchandise at very low prices. The partners hope to expand the business to another location by leasing a retail store about half a mile from Boka's main city centre. They intend to hire a skeleton staff for this branch, which may mean that the staff has to work overtime until the business grows. Rory and Denny are mindful that the government is serious about property insurance and insurance for employees, fair wages and good working conditions.

SECTION B

The firm sells a variety of low-priced household and gift items, educational and pharmaceutical products, and the staff is dedicated to good customer service. The marketing plan is geared towards the unique needs of clients on fixed incomes such as low income earners, the elderly and students. These clients are offered special discounts on a wide variety of household items, electronics, appliances, haberdashery items and stationery. This business model allows the firm to build its inventory from a number of seasoned manufacturers, generic brands and new product lines. In addition, Boka does a great deal of promotion on the Internet, television and radio, and has become a favourite among customers. Boka hopes that competitive pricing, its ideal location and the variety of goods it will stock will give it the edge over its competitors.

SECTION C

Denny provided the majority of the capital that was needed to establish the business. The remainder was obtained through short-term loans from a commercial bank to cover the expenses of marketing, consultancy fees, store design layout, minor renovations and inventory. The firm has been able to remain financially viable due to its sound business practices. Boka is equally serious about paying taxes on a timely basis and complying with environmental laws and regulations.
